

Doximity Dialer Video Calls: What Your Patient Sees

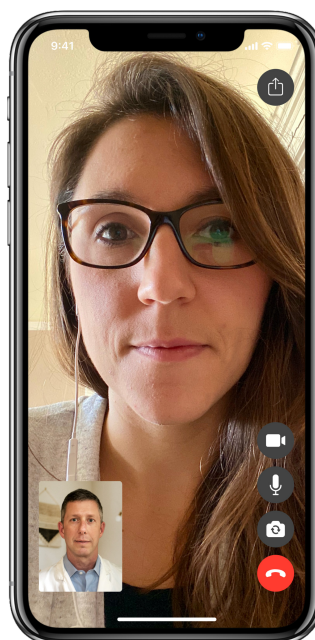

- 1 Patient will receive a text from an 882-86 short phone number inviting them to the video call
- If your patient tries to call or text the 882-86 short phone number back, the patient will receive an error message indicating that it is not a reachable number and doesn't accept incoming text messages.

- 2 Patient will have to give consent to receiving messages
- The patient will tap the link in the text and be brought to a screen asking them to consent to receive text messages from their doctor. Each patient will only be asked for consent once.

- 3 Patient will see a secure message from doctor with a link to join the video call
- If this is the first time the patient has joined a video call with their doctor using Doximity, they'll need to accept permissions for microphone and camera.

- 4 Patient will be brought into the video call room
- The patient will tap 'Join Video Call' button in the secure message and be brought into the call room with their doctor.
- The video call room will load in the patient's mobile browser (no other app installation needed).
